Our Unique Panalign Strips

Beautiful panel doors can be ruined by a poorly-aligned panel. On your next door project, slip Panalign Strips into the stiles and rails to keep panels perfectly centered, while allowing for expansion. Unlike carpet foam, which eventually loses elasticity and ceases to work, the rubber in Panalign Strips is specially designed to spring back indefinitely. They are also the solution for a panel that has been sanded so much that it is loose and rattles: inserting the strips keeps the panel snug but not fixed. The rectangular shape makes the strips easy to handle. Typical doors require 4 to 8 strips each.

Some woodworkers have avoided making arched raised panel doors for two reasons: the difficulty of making arched cuts and the expense of hold-down jigs. This system solves both problems by eliminating the need for high-cost hold-down jigs. (See catalog pages 28-29 showing step-by-step instructions for template use) Each of our five twenty-piece template packages includes ten sizes for the panels and the ten corresponding templates for the matching arched rails. Each template is individually stamped with its size which indicates overall door width; any door between 9-1/2" and 22" can be made. All templates are made of rugged HDPE plastic for years of use.
